The Cead Mile Failte at Doonass urgently needs a right of way restored, or an alternative put in place before someone gets hurt. The traditional access point has been blocked off due to a dispute locally with new owners of the Anglers Rest and local families and as a result the only access is over a ditch in the graveyard. Both my mother, and my husbands mother are from Clonlara, and as a result we would have always visited the area and gone through the Cead Mile Failte gate with our parents and cousins, and have brought our children on many a visit too. We both have generations of family buried in Doonass, and would visit graves as well as the Cead Mile. The current access point is not an option for me due to physical limitations, and likewise my husband. An invaluable part of heritage and family history will be lost if something isn't done soon!
