Sixmilebridge is the largest town in Clare without a secondary school. It is also the fastest growing town without a school (in the top 10 towns). It has a young population which is growing quickly. The County development plan does not have any land zoned for a secondary school which is an oversight. The town will forever be sidelined as a dormitory town without this critical infrastructure. When teens are forced to travel out of the town for secondary school, that entire portion of society are not only deprived of their sense of place and community which gets compounded by a lack of local age-appropriate infrastructure (e.g. youth clubs, social activities, etc.). A secondary school is needed now, will be needed for many generations to come and thus needs to have a site in the village zoned to provide this.
